• HUNGARY CLOSES MAIN BUDAPEST STATION TO REFUGEES

- Move follows chaotic scenes after thousands of people were allowed on to trains for Austria and Germany without visa checks

Hungarian authorities have closed Budapest's main station to refugees and migrants following chaotic scenes on Monday, when people who had been camped outside for weeks were suddenly allowed to leave for Austria and Germany without visa checks.

As it stands, refugees who reach Greece are then forced to travel through Macedonia, Serbia and Hungary to other destinations in Europe, a route making them vulnerable to human traffickers, gangs and corrupt officials.

- EUROPE'S NEW WALLS

Posted by: Judy Dempsey

To be free to travel. That was the dream of the millions who had lived under the Communist regimes in Eastern and Central Europe. That dream came through in summer 1989 when the Hungarian government cut the barbed wire fence that divided the country from Western Europe.

Thousands of East Germans who had made their way to Hungary crossed into Austria. It was the beginning of the end of a divided Europe. A few months later, the Berlin Wall, which symbolized the division of Europe into two ideological and physical blocs, was torn down. Europe was finally whole and united.

Then came the introduction of the EU's Schengen system, which abolished border controls between most European Union countries.

That gave Europeans from Eastern, Central, and Southeastern Europe a real sense of living in an open and seamless Europe.

But that open Europe is now in jeopardy as governments build walls against refugees, against Russia, and against the Roma. The more governments build such fences, the more they undermine the EU as an open, democratic, and free space—qualities and values that have made Europe attractive and a beacon to others.

And the more EU governments build barriers, the more they will play into the hands of authoritarian regimes in Europe's Eastern and Southern neighborhoods. A closed and divided Europe could lose its attraction for people wanting the freedom to travel, work, and study in Europe.

Right now, Hungary is building a 12-foot-high (4-meter) fence along its 109-mile (175-kilometer) border with Serbia to prevent refugees fleeing the wars in Syria and Iraq from entering the country.

Britain is building a new security fence around the Channel Tunnel terminal in Calais, France, for the same reason.

DANS LE MONDE ARABE

Les violences qui se déchaînent dans les pays arabes depuis quatre ans pourraient bien ne constituer qu'un avant-goût de ce qui nous attend. L'escalade de brutalité et les actions entreprises par les gouvernements exercent une pression considérable sur les citoyens de la région. Si le cours des choses n'évolue pas, nous pouvons nous attendre à voir éclater de nouveaux conflits, et surgir une nouvelle vague de soulèvements – cette fois beaucoup moins pacifiques.

• ضباب الدبلوماسية في سورية

أثارت موجة الاتصالات والزيارات بين القوى الخارجية الرئيسية الضالعة في الصراع السوري خلال الأسابيع القليلة الماضية تكهنات بأن فرصة نادرة لإنهاء الحرب قد تنفتح. موجة النشاط الدبلوماسي أمر مثير للإعجاب، وهي غير مسبوقة تقريباً منذ نشر بيان "جنيف 1" في العام 2012، في جمع الجهات الفاعلة الرئيسية من الجانبين. ولكن على رغم أن احتمال إنهاء مأساة سورية يبقى أملاً مغرياً، فإنه لا يزال مستبعداً. والواقع أن القوى الخارجية الرئيسية لم تعط علامة تُذكر على تغيير مواقفها الأساسية. وهي تبدو، بدل ذلك، منشغلة بالتموضع وبالعلاقات العامة عندما يتعلق الأمر بسورية.
